

Environmental and System Engineer for the Sustainability Engineering Team

Ort: Wil SG

Anstellungsgrad: 80 – 100%

Innovating a sustainable future.

With this vision, Helbling Technik positioned as a long-term partner in the innovation network of the customer. Based on powerful engineering tools, modern infrastructure with laboratories and highly professional methods, Helbling Technik's 460 engineers, computer scientists, physicists and other professionals generate innovative ideas integrating state-of-the-art technologies and develop successful products.

Together with a team of highly qualified engineers, scientists, and designers, you conceive, develop, and realize products from the idea to series production. In the project team, you will quickly take responsibilities for your tasks in your function as an

Environmental and System Engineer for the Sustainability Engineering Team

Specific Responsibilities

Your field of activity includes the development of sustainable and circular products for clients ranging from start-ups to multinationals, for different industries such as food & beverage, appliance and medical. You are flexible, have a flair for innovative solutions and enjoy their practical implementation.

Professional Qualifications

- Completed studies in Environmental Engineering or studies in engineering with specialization in sustainability-related topics
- Good knowledge in standards and regulations related to life cycle assessment (LCA), GHG emissions estimation and reporting, ecodesign
- Skills in thermodynamics and/or electronics are a big advantage
- Experience in the development of products is an advantage
- 1-2 years of professional experience are an advantage
- You are strong in finding solutions to solve problems, work systematically and have a strong understanding of complex systems
- You have excellent communication skills and enjoy the intensive exchange with our customers to understand their challenges and needs
- You quickly familiarize yourself with new topics
- You have a good level in English and German (written and spoken)

Helbling Benefits

- An interdisciplinary and motivated team of engineers, designers, and specialists
- Challenging projects with the opportunity to participate in advancing the sustainability agenda of top companies
- An open and international environment
- Attractive working conditions in modern premises at a centrally located workplace
- A high-quality infrastructure (development tools, rapid prototyping, laboratories, workshops)
- Continuous education to promote and challenge your personal abilities

Are you interested? Then we look forward to receiving your comprehensive and complete application documents through our applicant portal.

We kindly request your understanding that we exclusively review applications submitted directly.

www.helbling.ch